Resolution text

From line 23 to 27:

2. Promote ~~peace~~ and ~~stability~~ protect—through transnational advocacy campaigns, foreign policy, and domestic compliance with international law—peace, justice, and human rights in the Middle East ~~in~~ East by demanding that all people are treated equally without fear of discrimination based race, class, ethnicity, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, age, or religion. The urgency of this charge cannot be understated in light of the imminent and impending consequences of the U.S. election and Trump’s past history of illegal military incursions, racism, and a flood of ultranationalist, “America first” policies that throughout the region, which have destabilized privileged American interests over human dignity, and have engendered acts or empowered already existing systems of segregation, inequality, racism, violence, oppression through military incursions in the Middle East, we will work for. We oppose the enabling of exceptionalism from international law by the USA and its allies, and demand that a balanced rule-based order apply to all equally. We call for the prosecution of all Europeans who have enabled and constructive are complicit in war crimes and crimes against humanity. Individually and collectively, European nations will advocate and work towards an EU foreign policy that combats discrimination; ends authoritarianism and imperialism; promotes peace, justice, human rights, and international law; supports rights groups, civil society, and democratic movements; and works to resolve conflicts through ~~diplomacy~~ mutual respect, diplomacy, cultural exchange, resource-sharing, and humanitarian aid.
