- <sup>2</sup> The rise of the far-right across Europe is a new manifestation of the
- <sup>3</sup> continent's struggle with its colonial and racist legacy and how European
- <sup>4</sup> society still fails to address these issues. EU Member States, like Hungary, the
- Netherlands, Germany and France, are reinstating border checks and straying away from the
- <sup>7</sup> principle of free movement. The reintroduction of border checks is not just a
- <sup>8</sup> threat to free movement but increases racial profiling and discrimination in the
- <sup>9</sup> EU bloc. As noted by PICUM, research in 2021 from the EU Fundamental Rights
- <sup>10</sup> Agency showed that people from an ethnic minority are disproportionately
- <sup>11</sup> affected by police stops. A 2014 study showed that 79% of border guards surveyed
- <sup>12</sup> at airports rated ethnicity as a helpful indicator to identifying people
- <sup>13</sup> attempting to enter the country in an irregular manner. This is at odds with the
- <sup>14</sup> European Commission's commitments under the recent Anti-racism Action Plan
- <sup>15</sup> (ARAP).
- <sup>16</sup> The United Kingdom (until mid-2024), Italy and the Netherlands set up mechanisms
- to outsource the sheltering of refugees to third countries (respectively Rwanda,
- <sup>18</sup> Albania and Uganda), all with questionable safety records and possible human
- <sup>19</sup> rights violations. The Netherlands plans to send its non-national prisoners to
- <sup>20</sup> Estonia. Police in most European countries still enforce heavier penalties
- <sup>21</sup> against activists of colour for the same offences as their white peers, with
- <sup>22</sup> cases of torture and abuse by police being recorded by human rights
- <sup>23</sup> organisations.

As Greens, we believe that institutions, including the European Parliament, in

- <sup>32</sup> combination with grassroots activism, can and do bring about the societal and
- <sup>33</sup> political change we need. Policies at the European level, created thanks to the

- <sup>38</sup> The European Green Party's values are represented by the actions and policy
- <sup>39</sup> proposals that stand in solidarity with racialised and ethnic-minoritised people
- <sup>40</sup> throughout Europe. In the past, Green Members of the European Parliament (MEPs)
- <sup>41</sup> have pushed a mandate for the Anti-Discrimination Directive to be
- <sup>42</sup> unblocked by the Council. This successfully incorporated countering racism and
- discrimination by law enforcement and AI in recent legislation, including the
- <sup>44</sup> revision of the Framework Decision on combating certain forms and expressions of
- <sup>45</sup> racism and xenophobia by means of criminal law, and successfully adopted various
- resolutions on anti-racism and intersectional discrimination.
- 47 As the European Green Party, we welcome the efforts of the Green Group in
- <sup>48</sup> advocating for racial justice and anti-racism internally vis-a-vis European
- <sup>49</sup> Commissioners, the Parliament and its committees. The Group has recently managed
- <sup>50</sup> to include the creation of the new anti-racism strategy in Commission President
- von der Leyen's commitments ahead of her election into her second cabinet as an
   'urgent action
- to protect democracy and equality', in line with the European Green Party's 2024 EU manifesto.
- <sup>55</sup> This upcoming mandate brings several crucial priorities and key concerns,
- <sup>56</sup> including those highlighted above, without forgetting the re-establishment and
- <sup>57</sup> work of the Anti-Racism and Diversity Intergroup; renewal of the ARAP and

| 58 | ensuring its proper implementation; the election of the second von der Leye | en |

- <sup>59</sup> Commission and ensuring its accountability; the intensification of AI and
- <sup>60</sup> evaluation of the AI Act; and the intensification of the climate crisis and thus
- <sup>61</sup> the exacerbation of climate racism and the rise of climate refugees.

| 62 | Therefore, as we continue the fight for an anti-racist and racially just Europe                |

| 63 | that truly is united in diversity and recall our resolution " The EU has a              |

further entrench Fortress Europe and Frontex. Instead, we advocate for welcoming and humanitarian alternatives that prioritise the rights of Pursue an equitable and people-centred foreign policy, where countries are treated equally and maximum focus is given on peace and equitable development cooperation. Herein, the three-way test of recourse to military means of conflict prevention and management, as set out in the Charter of the European Greens, is upheld.

 Actively engage in political and societal discussions on climate racism 93 and extractivism and meaningfully incorporate such analysis in our work in 94 95 parliaments and other institutions, as stressed in the aforementioned diversity and inclusion resolution. This means acknowledging that 96 countries and people in the Global South who contribute the least to the 97 98 climate crisis are those most affected by its consequences and have their resources taken away by the Global North in the pursuit of innovation and 99 100 climate adaptation, thereby increasing their risk of suffering under the 101 climate crisis. Within Europe, we acknowledge that racialised and ethnic-102 minoritised communities are often disproportionately subjected to the 103 consequences of the climate crisis or neglected or discriminated against 104 in climate action.

105 Meaningfully address the destructive legacy of European countries in its former colonies and current dominions and territories in the pursuit of 106 transitional and reparatory justice. This includes but is not limited to 107 108 reparations in the form of formal apologies, debt cancellation, monetary restitution, mancipatory development aid, and the return of cultural 109 110 artefacts and human remains to the indigenous peoples in their land of 111 origin. At the EU level, we must meaningfully engage with our partners in 112 the Caribbean Community (CARICOM), the Community of Latin American and 113 Caribbean States (CELAC), and the African Union, who have initiated calls 114 for and attempts at dialogue for such reparations vis-a-vis the European Union. 115

- Call for the protection of anti-racism organisations from dis- and

| 120 | institutions to establish channels that denounce such practices and     |
| 121 | allocate structures to prevent them in all contexts, including in the   |
| 122 | public institutions themselves.   |

 Condemn the acts and enabling of corporate media in perpetuating and encouraging racial and sexual abuse against racialised and ethnicminoritised communities through the dehumanisation and demonisation of such minoritised communities and individuals therefrom. We advocate for the establishment of European-wide obligations and standards on media companies regarding non-discriminatory, equitable, and correct representations of minoritised communities.

Strengthen tools to tackle racism and racial abuse in the digital space, too, through the codification in law and the mandating of the currently optional EU Code of Conduct on countering illegal hate speech online for social media corporations and through the adoption of specialised legislation on cyber-racism amending or supporting the Digital Services Act and the Framework Decision on combating racism and xenophobia, drawing from the Australian model.

Meaningfully tackle Islamophobia and anti-Semitism within the European Green Party's member parties, the European Parliament, and across the wider European society.

Introduce and meaningfully execute programmes to ensure an inclusive culture and increase and sustain racial diversity in political and organisational positions of power within member parties and the wider Green family, and push for them to be implemented in the European Parliament, echoing the aforementioned diversity and inclusion resolution.
