Candidacy

FINANCE ADVISORY BOARD (FAB)

Why do I apply to the Finance Advisory Board (FAB)?

Financial matters are often poorly understood, disliked, or disregarded by members of organizations. Yet, both in substance and in form, the issue of finances is essential in the life of any human group.

Substantively, money is one of the elements that enables a human group, and in this case a political organization, to achieve its objectives. I have the skills to analyze a budget and contribute to decision-making to optimize the relationship between objectives and resources.

In terms of form, the way finances are managed reflects the group's overall well-being: the source of funds, decision-making processes, information sharing, and grassroots control. These are all areas of focus to which I am committed and to which I can contribute with my expertise.

I am quite familiar with European issues. As mentioned in my CV, I have worked for a European organization and participated in many meetings in English in various European cities. My candidacy for the 2024 in European elections, my involvement in drafting the program, and the election campaign—including debates and interviews—allowed me to stay up-to-date on the workings of European politics and our internal European organization.
