

Dear EGP Committee,

We are writing to take a further step in the political work and growing cooperation that Más Madrid has pursued deliberately in recent years, by formally applying to join the European Green Party. With this letter, we wish to submit our candidature, firmly convinced that Más Madrid not only fully shares the ecological, social and human rights values that define the European green movement, but can also contribute actively to strengthening it.

Today, Más Madrid is a well-established and robust political force, with a strong electoral and institutional presence. We are the leading opposition party in the Madrid region, home to more than eight million inhabitants. We currently govern in nine municipalities and hold representation in a further thirty-seven, with over one hundred elected representatives. We lead the opposition both in Madrid's Regional Government and in the City Council, confronting one of the governments most hostile to democracy, social rights, and climate action in Europe. In the most recent regional elections, we secured nearly 19% of the vote, placing ahead of PSOE (S&D) and consolidating our position as the main ecological and progressive force in Madrid.

Our spokesperson and leader, Mónica García, now serves in the Spanish Government as Minister of Health. Her political trajectory reflects the approach we champion in Más Madrid: combining transformative ambition with institutional responsibility, and translating green values into concrete public policies that improve people's lives. Since our foundation, we have maintained a clear and consistent commitment to the European green political family.

At the national level, Más Madrid has played a key role in shaping the platform of Sumar and in its participation in Spain's coalition government, helping to build a progressive project with an unmistakably green, feminist, and social vision. We have demonstrated our ability to cooperate, forge alliances, and sustain shared political efforts with loyalty and genuine transformative purpose.

This commitment to cooperation is particularly clear in our longstanding relationship with Verdes Equo (now Partido Verde). We have worked side by side for years, not only at the regional level but also in Parliament and across various institutional spaces, forging a strong alliance that we see as a long-term shared endeavour. For Más Madrid, green unity is not merely a slogan, but a daily political practice.

We would also like to highlight the role of Jóvenes Más Madrid, currently in the process of full membership in the Young European Greens, as an expression of a young, pro-European generation deeply committed to climate and social justice.

In recent times, our relationship with the European Green Party has grown ever closer. Meetings held in Brussels with our spokespersons Manuela Bergerot and Rita Maestre, joint working spaces in Madrid — including the Green Social Summit — our participation in the EGP Congress, and the presence of Más Madrid representatives in European mobilisations alongside the Greens, such as the Budapest Pride march attended by Eduardo Rubiño, have all been moments of sincere political dialogue. They have reinforced a shared conviction: this is our political home.

In the same spirit, the incorporation of a Más Madrid member into the daily work of the Greens group in the European Parliament has provided first-hand evidence of our strong political affinity and excellent collaboration.

Más Madrid does not see its project as confined to the regional level. We have a proven record of cooperation beyond the Community of Madrid, and a clear commitment to contributing to the construction of a strong, stable, and electorally impactful green project at the national level, fully aligned with the priorities and values of the European Green Party.

We fully share the principles of the European Green Manifesto 2024: defending democracy in the face of the far right; feminism as a central political pillar; social justice; a fair and inclusive ecological transition; solidarity-based internationalism; and European strategic autonomy against any form of authoritarianism or imperial ambition.

For all these reasons, we are firmly convinced that Más Madrid's membership of the European Green Party will strengthen the wider green family, bringing institutional experience, electoral capacity, and a steadfast commitment to an ambitious, coherent, and transformative European green project.

Yours sincerely,
The Executive Committee of Más Madrid
