and our relatively peaceful and prosperous societies depends on us acting now.
Protecting the climate and environment is about protecting people.

The Green transition towards a socially just and climate neutral Europe bears the promise of prosperity. We are working towards a better living environment and well paid, safe jobs in the heart of our economies. Europe is on the forefront of green technology development and innovation. Leading the green transition allows us to tap into that potential and reap the benefits of our inventive spirit. Instead of paying billions to autocracies to buy fossil fuels that are extracted and refined in third countries, we can invest this money in the production and installation of renewables, money and jobs that we keep in Europe and invest in a better future.
