necessary for productive farming, nor for weed control. Glyphosate can and must be banned, with economic support for farmers to make this shift. The EU should demand a continuous assessment of international trade agreements in which the EU is involved, with the dual objective of preventing environmental and economic dumping that may result from lowering food quality standards. Quality controls on food are a crucial tool for this, and treaties with third-party states should be reevaluated when it is found that the requirements within the EU are not being met.
