laws must be strengthened and enforced to guarantee that AI systems do not discriminate against racialized communities.

Any AI-guiding policies will align with values such as what people want, putting human safety first and fairness. Deepfakes should be labelled as such by the programs that create them; Communications coming from artificial people, and automated interactions that are designed to manipulate the thinking or actions of a human being, should be labelled as well. We also agree that these labels should come with actions that can be taken. People should be able to understand what they're seeing, and should have reasonable choices in return.
